

The Responsibility to Protect and its Applicability in Latin America La Coordinadora Regional de Investigaciones Económicas y Sociales (CRIES)

May 2012

La Coordinadora Regional de Investigaciones Económicas y Sociales (CRIES), a founding Steering Committee member of the ICRtoP, has released the thirty-fifth issue of the journal Pensamiento Propio. This edition,

The Responsibility to Protect: A Latin American Perspective

focuses on the goal of fostering further debate on the Responsibility to Protect (RtoP) in Latin America and features contributions focusing on different national and regional perspectives on the norm.

The Responsibility to Protect: A Latin American Perspective features articles by:

- William Pace

Civil Society, Latin America, and the Development of RtoP

- Thiago Rodrigues

and

- Graziene Carneiro de Souza

Responsibility to Protect and 'Responsibility to React': Last Resort of a New Global Security Device

- Juan José Lucci

The Responsibility to Protect and the Five Permanent Members Interests: The Cases of Darfur, Myanmar and Syria

- Thomas Legler

The Regional Institutions and the Responsibility to Protect – The Presidential Axis

- Ricardo Arredondo

The Argentine Government and the Responsibility to Protect – Signs of Change?

- Alfredo Toro Carnevali

,
The Responsibility to Protect Concept – The Perspective of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela and other Developing Countries

- Pablo César Rosales Zamora

,
The Responsibility to Protect and the Armed Conflict in Colombia

This issue also includes the Brazilian note

Responsibility while Protecting: elements for the development and promotion of a concept

, with articles by

Gilberto Rodrigues

(
Responsibility while Protecting – Motivations, Content and Changes

), and

Juan Carlos Sainz-Borgo

(
Responsibility to Protect – The Brazilian Perspectiv

e) reflecting on the proposed concept. The statements by

Hon. Gareth Evans

given before the 21 February 2012 informal dialogue on ‘responsibility while protecting’ hosted by the Permanent Mission of Brazil to the United Nations, the statement delivered by

Dr. Edward Luck

, Special Adviser on the Responsibility to Protect, before the 12 July 2011 General Assembly informal dialogue on the Responsibility to Protect, and a review by

Raúl Allard N.

of the text

The Dark Side of Globalization are also featured in this journal edition.

Read the publication

•